HOLOKAI: My ACADEMIC VOYAGE

A degree from BYU–Hawaii is made up of four kinds of classes: core classes, classes from the Arts & Humanities category, classes from the Math & Sciences category, and classes from the Professional Studies category. When first choosing classes for their freshman semester, students are encouraged to explore the 3 different programs by taking introductory classes from each category. In the end, students will have completed one major program and two minor and/or certificate programs, each from a different category and from a different department, in order to earn a degree.
